Messrs. GOODLATTE, SHUSTER, Camp of Michigan and BURTON of Indiana changed their vote from "yea" to "nay."

So the motion to instruct was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 447, my vote was not recorded. Had I been present, I would have voted "yea."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the Chair appoints the following conferees:

From the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, for consideration of the House bill and the Senate amendment, and modifications committed to conference: Messrs. YOUNG of Alaska, DUNCAN, BAKER, GARY G. MILLER of California, BROWN of South Carolina, BOOZMAN, OBERSTAR, Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas, Mr. COSTELLO, and Mr. BISHOP of New York.

From the Committee on Resources, for consideration of sections 2017, 2020, 2025, and 2027 of the House bill, and sections 3019, 5007, and 5008 of the Senate amendment, and modifications committed to conference: Mr. POMBO, Mrs. MUSGRAVE, and Mr. KIND.

There was no objection.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks, and that I may be permitted to include extraneous material on House Resolution 1003.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

PROVIDING FOR EARMARKING REFORM IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 1003 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 1003

Resolved, That upon adoption of this resolution, House Resolution 1000, amended by the amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on Rules now printed in the resolution, is hereby adopted.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

Mr. Speaker, today we are considering a very important reform that is a bipartisan reform. It is bipartisan because it is an issue that I am happy to say, as we have moved down the road towards reform, has enjoyed strong bipartisan support. In fact, it was a key provision in the House-passed Lobbying Accountability and Transparency Act, which did enjoy bipartisan support, not as strong as I would have liked, but it did enjoy bipartisan support.

Specifically, Mr. Speaker, with this new rule, Member-directed spending to projects in their district, or earmarks, will no longer be anonymous. It is very simple.

We all know, as it stands now, there are no disclosure requirements in appropriations, tax bills or authorizing legislation. Earmarks can be buried in the text of bills that often number into the thousands of pages. There is no easy way to account for how many earmarks are in a bill or who is sponsoring them.

This new rule requires sponsors of earmarks to be listed in committee reports. Conference reports must also have a list of earmarks that are "air-dropped" or brought into an agreement in the conference report itself. It is just that simple.

We are blowing away the fog of anonymity so the public can have a clear picture of what the projects are, how much they cost, and who is sponsoring them. It is just a very simple case of transparency.

Mr. Speaker, this is a victory for fiscal responsibility and a victory for spending taxpayer dollars more wisely.

As an enforcement mechanism, this new rule also provides for a question of consideration when a bill or conference report does not contain a list of earmarks. The question of consideration is debatable for 30 minutes, 15 minutes equally divided.

Mr. Speaker, if a Member feels strongly enough about a proposed earmark, they will have to attach their name to it. That is all we are asking. And they need to be prepared to make their case in full view of their colleagues, their constituents, and the American people as a whole.

Mr. Speaker, the earmark reform bill will build on the reforms that have already been implemented by the Appropriations Committee, and I take my hat off to the Appropriations Committee for the very bold and dynamic reforms that they have made. They have reduced the number of earmarks already by 37 percent. Overall spending on Member projects was reduced by $7.8 billion below last year's level.

Over the last 2 years, Member project spending has decreased by over $10 million, and I want to especially express my appreciation to my very dear friend, JERRY LEWIS, who has so ably chaired the Appropriations Committee and has stepped up to the plate and taken on this issue of reform and done it with great success because of the fact that he has been able to rein in Federal spending. It doesn't get a lot of attention, but he has been very successful in doing that.

Mr. Speaker, I also want to make very clear that our focus is not solely on appropriations. This was one of the requests that Chairman LEWIS made of us as we were proceeding with this work.

For this reform to be effective, it must be comprehensive, and that was the commitment that the Speaker of the House and our leadership team made to our Members. So let me point out that this earmark reform applies across the board. It doesn't just apply to some committees. It covers all committees, all appropriations, all tax, all authorizing legislation, anything that moves through this House through regular order.

Mr. Speaker, we have taken great care to clearly and precisely state what constitutes a tax, an appropriation, or an authorizing earmark. And the good news is that there is more agreement than disagreement on those definitions. Yet clearly there is no magic bullet. There is not going to be one definition that will be perfect and please everybody. But at the end of the day, we have to come together. We have to come together, Mr. Speaker, and move this process forward. If there is an earmark in a bill, it belongs on a list. It is just that simple.

If there is an earmark, we need to see it. Now, is this new disclosure going to completely end the practice of earmarking? I certainly hope not. I don't want it to, because I believe that earmarking is part of our constitutional responsibility. But it will shine a spotlight on earmarks without grinding the legislative process to a halt.

Let me make very clear that the larger goal of this new rule is to make a profound and lasting change in how this institution handles earmarks and spends taxpayer dollars. The goal is to increase transparency, disclosure and accountability, and the goal is to pull back the curtain on earmarks for the public, because I believe, Mr. Speaker, that they have a right to know.

For this earmark reform to be both meaningful and lasting, everyone, from committee chairmen on down, must make a good-faith effort to comply with the spirit of the new rule. Our leadership, and certainly the Rules Committee, has made such a commitment, and we are determined to make this work.

Mr. Speaker, I would also like to point out that while this is an important milestone in the path toward reform, we have not reached the goal line. In fact, I don't believe that we will ever reach the absolute goal line because reform is a continuous process. It gains momentum from Members who never let up and never settle for the status quo.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to vote "yes" for reforming earmarks, and "yes" to setting the stage for more reforms that we will face down the road.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I might consume.

Mr. Speaker, it is no secret why fewer than 30 percent of Americans approve of the job that Congress is doing. It is not hard to figure out why nearly 75 percent of Americans feel as though the country is headed in the wrong direction, and it is easy to see why so few citizens are confident that this government will turn things around.

Our elected officials routinely abuse the public trust, promising one thing and delivering another. They intentionally disguise business as usual to look like positive reform, and Members of the House have ignored the rules written in the public interest, and have allowed the deliberative process at the heart of our democracy to be captured by special interests.

The result has been a Congress where corrupt lobbyists write the bills, 15-minute votes are held open for 3 hours and entirely new legislation is crammed into acts in the dead of night. The American people know it, and they are tired of the old games. When finally faced with public awareness and anger over just how corrupt our House has become, Republicans promised a great deal.

In fact, they opened 2006 with a flurry of promises. My good friend and colleague, DAVID DREIER, the chairman of the Rules Committee and Republican ethics reform leader, had this to say on the floor in February, and I quote, "We are committed to bold, strong, dynamic reforms for this institution," he said. Adding the quote, "the Republican Party has stood for reform ever since I can remember."

But since then, Mr. Speaker, very little of anything has come from my Republican friends, even though their party controls the House, the Senate and the White House. If they were interested in ethics reform, they would have passed it swiftly. Instead they seem here at the last throes simply determined to merely run out the clock on the issue of passing a few deceptive bills here and there while secretly hoping the whole subject would go away.

We saw this strategy with the first ethics reform act passed by the House in February, which was a minor rules change that simply prevented former Members from using the House gym, as if that is the only place that dishonest business transpires in Washington.

Then in May a broader Republican bill theoretically focused on preventing future lobbyist abuses was lambasted by commentators of all stripes for being what it was, a sham. It has been a history of deliberate inaction, Mr. Speaker, and the same story here today.

As this legislative session comes to a close, it is truly shameful that bills like this one are all the House is going to be able to accomplish. Consider the context in which this bill comes to us.

While my colleagues on the other side spent years railing against the evils of Congressional earmarks, they have been presiding over the greatest earmark explosion in American history. According to the Heritage Foundation, earmarks are appropriations bills that increased tenfold between 1995 and 2005. In the mid-1990s, they accounted for $10 billion in Federal spending. Today it is over $27 billion.

Nonappropriation earmarks have skyrocketed as well. Last year's transportation reauthorization bill, for example, contains 6,371 earmarks, totaling $25 billion, including the "Bridge to Nowhere."

We cannot afford to keep spending in such an irresponsible way, Mr. Speaker. One look at our skyrocketing national deficit is proof enough of that. But this is about more than just debt, it is about the future of democracy itself.

Unchecked earmarks, and many of them for relatives of the persons who wrote them, or for businesses that they own, are a cause of the culture of corruption that pervades Washington and undermines our democracy. They are routinely traded for political favors, exchanged for votes and used to benefit family members. They are, in the words of Representative FLAKE, the currency of corruption in Washington.

Yet, my Republican friends have given us a bill today that is a non-response to the crucial issue, a deceptive bill that is riddled with loopholes. Just like the previous legislation, this is, once again, a sham.

This measure is supposed to increase disclosure of which Members are behind which earmarks. But it is intentionally limited. It leaves numerous means by which Members can conceal their earmarks. The rules change proposed to the resolution applies only to reported bills, so a Member who wanted to avoid disclosing earmarks to the public could simply include them in the manager's amendment or bring the bill straight to the House floor without a committee markup, therefore, no identifiable earmarks. That is a loophole you could drive a truck through.

If that is not bad enough, the bill defines many types of earmarks right out of existence. For example, spending on Federal entities can no longer be classified as an earmark under the bill. That would have allowed the infamous $200 million "Bridge to Nowhere" earmark that blew up in a scandal last year to avoid disclosure entirely. The $400 million Home Depot ceiling fan giveaway that we heard so much about would not have counted as a earmark either, just because the resolution did not include tariff and duty changes in its definition.

Of course, this entire piece of legislation would expire in January. Let me make that point again. What we are doing here today, when this passes today, it is only good till the end of the year. How serious a bill is that?

This is a deeply flawed solution to a serious problem, a temporary stopgap measure, and I think we won't be writing any more earmarks this year, which is designed to do little more than get the Republicans through the November elections.

As always, there is an alternative. More than 6 months ago my Democrat colleagues and I offered a tough, commonsense report package that would have corrected many of the most rampant abuses plaguing Washington, abuses that have diverted the work being done here away from the good of the people and toward the wants of a few.

Legislation I introduced on behalf of the Democratic leadership in May bans travel on corporate gifts, bans lobbyist gifts, slows down the revolving door between Capitol Hill and K Street, prohibits lobbyists writing the bills, addresses many of the broken procedures and rules here in this House.

It focuses on earmarks, too, in a much more direct and systemic way than the bill before us does now. In fact, it requires Members to publicly disclose all district-specific earmark requests that they make on bills and conference reports. This past May I am proud to say that 16 Republicans joined with the Democrats in support of this bill.

In the end, it failed the House by only two votes. It was deeply encouraging to see rank-and-file Republicans of conscience challenge their Republican Party's leadership, to see them back up their pledge to clean up the House with real action. They will have other chances to do it, too, because Democrats have not given up this fight.

We have always prided ourselves on delivering what we have promised, and we are committed to eliminating the corruption that plagues our Congress today. We won't stop until we get there.

Together, we will give the country a Congress they can be proud of again.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds to say in response to my good friend from New York once again, this is a bipartisan effort. I know that the Democratic Caucus has talked about the need to implement this reform. We hope very much, when we come back to majority status in January of next year, to renew and build on this kind of reform.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to my very good friend, a hardworking member of the Commerce Committee, the gentleman from Phoenix, Arizona (Mr. SHADEGG).

Mr. SHADEGG. I thank the gentleman for yielding. I compliment him for his hard work in this effort at earmark reform, and I also compliment the leaders of this House.

Mr. Speaker, just a year ago, I think no one would have believed that we would have been standing here now on the verge of adopting very far-reaching earmark reform. I compliment everybody engaged in this debate, from my Democrat colleagues to my Republican colleagues, all of the people involved, including the chairman of the Appropriations Committee, who has engaged in this vigorously.

This is a milestone. This is a step forward for the American people. This is a day in which we are saying the American people get to know how their money is spent.

Importantly, when we passed similar language several months ago, the chairman of the Appropriations Committee said it is wrong to single out a single committee. This should apply to all committees, and he was right then, and he is right now. It is important, indeed, I would argue it is vital that the American people be able to know how every dollar they send us in taxes gets spent, and this legislation will allow that to happen.

It says that every earmark and every Member who requested an earmark must be openly acknowledged in the legislation itself. By shedding the light of day on the earmarks that move through this Congress, we are being open and straightforward. Those who have what they consider to be a good earmark for the country can come to this floor and defend it and explain it, and the American people can examine it. I believe this is a tremendous step forward.

I want to caution people listening to the debate. What you will hear in the debate here today is that this bill isn't right, because it is not perfect. It doesn't go far enough. The definitions aren't quite precise. We just heard the minority say it is not a good bill because there has been an explosion in earmarks. So, somehow, since there has been an explosion in earmarks, we should not do anything.

That is outrageous. No bill that I have voted on in my career in this Congress has been perfect. No bill has had every definition exactly right. This is a tremendous step forward. This is a vote for sunshine. This is a vote for openness in our government, and I urge my colleagues to support it.

I compliment our leadership and the chairman of the Rules Committee.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN).

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, after all the scandals, after all the corruption, after all the unethical abuse of earmarks, after all the public outrage, this is it? This is the best that you can do? With all due respect to my colleague from Arizona, who just spoke, I don't want your compliments. I don't want to take credit for this.

This measure before us is not earmark reform or any other kind of real reform. It is not accountability, and it is not transparency. It is, at best, a press release. There are so many loopholes in this measure that you could drive a Mack truck right through it. Unreported bills, manager's amendments and other amendments are not subject to this so-called reform.

That is where a great deal of the earmarking abuse occurs, but it is all exempt. We need to clean this place up. We need to change the culture of corruption in this House of Representatives. We need a comprehensive lobbying bill that has teeth in it, that means something.

Let me say to my colleagues, this entire institution has suffered as a result of the corrupt practices of the Tom DeLays and the Duke Cunninghams. It has suffered under the 12 years of mismanagement by the Republican majority here. People have had it. People have lost faith in this institution.

This chairman of the Rules Committee talks about how the Republican majority is interested in reining in spending. Federal spending has gone up 40 percent since George Bush took office. In terms of earmarks, they are coming late to this game. In 1995, when they took power, there were about 1,400 earmarks. There are over 14,000 earmarks as of 2005.

You know, the only way to regain the confidence of the American people is by combating the corruption, by cleaning up this institution, by implementing real, honest-to-goodness reform.

This is not it. If you are going to do something, do it right.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I am happy to yield 2 minutes to a very hardworking member of the Committee on Rules, my very, very good friend from Marietta, Georgia, Dr. GINGREY.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H. Res. 1000, a resolution providing for earmark reform in the U.S. House of Representatives. I want to say that I support this resolution because I take my responsibility to allocate the hard-earned money of the residents of Georgia's 11th District very, very seriously.

There are fundamental duties of the Federal Government, tasks that the American people cannot do individually, but they rely on the collective strength of our Nation's capital to accomplish. Some of these tasks are national security, ensuring the safety of our citizens at home and abroad, and maintaining our national highways and infrastructure. However, over the years, the Federal Government has expanded this definition to encompass many extraneous projects that cannot be defended.

Mr. Speaker, there is a reason earmarks have become such an integral part of the appropriation and authorization process in Congress. It is because each individual Member of Congress knows what is needed in their own districts better than anyone else. It is for this reason that I fully support this legislation, because it does not outlaw earmarks. Rather, it represents reform that is long overdue.

Mr. Speaker, I have submitted earmark requests on behalf of my constituents, but I have always tried to prioritize these projects in an effort to maintain my credibility as a trustworthy steward of the taxpayer dollars.

So I rise today not to condemn the earmark process, but rather to applaud the legislation that inherently reforms it. This legislation takes a stand for transparency in an effort to curb the current trend of frivolous Federal spending. Congress always needs to remember to whom we are ultimately accountable, and because of this legislation, Congress will be able to restore that full credibility.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. MATSUI).

(Ms. MATSUI asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I thank my good friend from New York for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, the American people are demanding real reform of Congress. This bill isn't it.

The second session of the 109th Congress began with Members on both sides of the aisle deeply concerned that the dignity of this great institution had been tarnished. Newspapers across the country ran stories almost every day about the illegal practices of well-connected lobbyists. Stories discussed the ways in which unethical conduct had become the cost of doing business in Congress.

We read about the K Street Project. We read about legislation written in secret by lobbyists and about back-room deals to benefit narrow special interests. Editorial boards from all 50 States called for reform.

In May, the House passed a fundamentally flawed approach to reform. It included some new restrictions on lobbyists, yes, but we showed no willingness to demand reform of ourselves. That sent a terrible message to our constituents.

There is a better approach. I have joined many of my colleagues as a cosponsor of the Honest Leadership Open Government Act. It injects transparency and accountability into Congress itself. There would be no more K Street Project. There would be no more meals or gifts from lobbyists. No more travel on corporate jets. And it would ensure better legislation. Members would be guaranteed 24 hours to read a bill before voting on it. And we would end the common practice of last-minute provisions slipped into conference reports.

The majority is interested in none of this. The legislation was rejected in May along party lines. And since then, the House has not shown any interest in moving ahead with any meaningful reform.

So here we are in the waning days of the 109th Congress debating only a narrow earmark reform resolution full of exceptions and unlikely to pass.

Every Member of this House knows that this bill is not what the American people demanded of us at the beginning of the year. Certainly, this resolution will not restore the integrity of the institution in which we serve.

Mr. Speaker, the American people want real reform. They will not be fooled by fig leaves.

We still have time to act in a unified fashion to restore the dignity of this House. Unfortunately, this resolution falls far short of that necessary effort.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, at this time I am very happy to yield 1 minute to the very distinguished majority leader, who has been a great champion of earmark reform for many, many years, my friend, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BOEHNER).

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, let me thank my colleague from California (Mr. DREIER), the chairman of the Rules Committee, for yielding, and thank him and the Speaker for their tremendous work on this rule change.

Mr. Speaker, today is an important day for the House as an institution. There has been much written this year about the practice of earmarking, which has allowed lawmakers to anonymously insert spending projects into bills without scrutiny or significant debate. It is a major source of frustration, I think, for the American people, and for those of us who believe that we need greater accountability and transparency in the way Congress works.

Earlier this year, I, along with many of my colleagues, called for reforms to this earmark process. We need a process where we can determine what are worthy projects and distinguish those from worthless pork. These reforms before us will help accomplish that goal so unworthy projects can be publicly identified, debated and, hopefully, weeded out.

I think the reforms before us are very straightforward. They specify that if the House considers a bill which includes earmarks, it must be accompanied by a list identifying those earmarks as well as the names of the Members who requested them. The reforms also ensure that in the case of a conference report, the list includes any earmarks that were what we call "air-dropped," or in other words, not included in either the House or Senate bills.

No longer will Members, the media or average taxpayers have to thumb through pages of legislative and report language looking for earmarks that are sometimes added at the eleventh hour. This information will be publicly available for everyone to see.

I think it is simple common sense. If you request a project, you ought to be willing to put your name on it, and if you aren't willing to put your name on a project, you shouldn't expect the American people to pay for it.

Fulfilling a commitment made by Republican leaders earlier this year to treat everyone equally, these reforms will apply to all committees, authorizers, appropriators and tax writers alike. The goal here is to bring earmarking out of the shadows and into the light of public scrutiny. These reforms will bring sunshine and transparency to the earmark process, resulting in greater accountability for lawmakers and greater public confidence in how their taxpayer dollars are spent.

Importantly, it also likely will result in fewer earmarks, building on the progress already made by leaders such as chairman of the Appropriations Committee, JERRY LEWIS. This year during the appropriations process, there were 37 percent fewer earmarks than the year before and the cost of those earmarks has been reduced by some $7.8 billion.

Earmark reform is just one component of Republicans' larger effort to promote fiscal discipline and ensure that Congress spends America's taxpayer dollars wisely.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. MOORE).

Mr. MOORE of Kansas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman.

Former Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan once said, "The government being the people's business, it necessarily follows that its operations should be at all times open to the public view. Publicity, therefore, is as essential to honest administration as freedom of speech is to representative government."

Public scrutiny and oversight is what our earmarking process needs, and one of the best ways to do this is by implementing meaningful reforms that bring transparency and accountability to the process.

The Republican leadership has offered a very modest rules amendment, but I think we should go even further. It is in that spirit that I have introduced H.R. 1008, a resolution outlining a comprehensive approach to earmark reform that brings real transparency and publicity to the earmarking process for appropriations, authorizations and tax benefits.

My comprehensive proposal, H.R. 1008, includes requirements not only for reporting the Member's name along with the earmark request; it also requires that earmark requests be submitted to the committee or committees at least 7 days before an earmark request is scheduled to be voted upon.

But, most importantly, most importantly, my proposal requires that information on all earmarks be posted on committee Web sites for public inspection at least 48 hours prior to the time of the vote, and also directs the Clerk of the House to establish a public Web site that provides links to all committee Web sites with information on earmark requests. By providing easily accessible information on earmarks and "one-stop shopping" for American taxpayers, we can bring real accountability to the earmarking process.

The need to control the growth of earmarks should not be a partisan issue. This is not about Democrats and Republicans, it is about a good idea and something good for the American public. We should come together to pass comprehensive earmark reform that brings real accountability and transparency to the process.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MOORE of Kansas. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. DREIER. I thank my friend for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I would simply say that the gentleman has some very interesting, creative ideas. As I said in my opening remarks, the reform process is an ongoing thing that we are dealing with, and I am more than happy to look at the proposals that the gentleman has, especially as we look at our opening day rules package for January of next year.

Mr. MOORE of Kansas. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman to accept the amendment to his proposal.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I am very happy to yield 2 minutes to a strong proponent of the issue of earmark reform, our friend from Mesa, Arizona (Mr. FLAKE).

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, the United States Congress is a wonderful and storied institution. It is with great reverence and pride that each of us who is elected comes into this body. But with earmarking, we have departed from the practices and traditions of the People's House.

When working properly, the House of Representatives follows the time-honored practice of authorization, appropriation and oversight. Earmarking short circuits this process. Today, we do far too little authorizing, far too much appropriating and far too little oversight.

When I was first elected, I had visions of participating in the great debates of our time. It is not that these policy debates haven't occurred. They have and they do. But I believe it is safe to say that they are diminishing.

In Congress, policies and priorities are established when money is attached to them. When the carefully designed process of authorization, appropriation and oversight is adhered to, these policies and priorities are given a thorough vetting. But when earmarks are inserted into bills at the last minute behind closed doors, there is no debate, deliberation or scrutiny.

When appropriation bills reach the House floor, passage by a lopsided margin is virtually assured because Members with earmarks are obligated to vote for the entire bill. The scope of debate is substantially narrowed when even partisan disagreements that would otherwise occur are hushed as Republicans and Democrats find common cause in protecting their earmarks.

I am under no illusion that this legislation, which deals only with the issue of transparency, will solve the problem of earmarking. Too many in this body have been convinced that they have both the right and the obligation to personally direct funding to their district. But this bill does represent an important first step.

Mr. Speaker, we owe this institution more than we are giving it. Let's pass this bill and give it more of the respect it deserves.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY).

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman.

Mr. Speaker, this bill represents the death of lobby reform. Over the last year, as we all know, this House has received a black eye because of the DeLay scandal, stories about lobbyists paying for golf trips to Scotland, the Cunningham blatant bribery case, the Abramoff scandal, and we have been awash in talk of reform. But comprehensive reform packages have not been allowed to come to this floor. We have not been allowed by the majority to have votes on them.

But now, 7 weeks before the election, we get a chance to see that the majority has labored long and produced a mouse, or a fig leaf at best.

My old friend, Archie the Cockroach, said once, "The trouble with most people is that they lose their sense of proportion; of what use is it for a queen bee to fall in love with a bull?" Think about it a minute.

The problem with this bill is that there is a huge problem and this bill proposes a minuscule solution. The answer of the majority leadership is to require a list of what they call earmarks. But this package is more notable for what it does not include than it is for what it does include.

I would call it the 1 percent solution.

Now, my personal anger about earmarks I think is well known in this body. The last time I chaired the Appropriations Committee there was not a single earmark in the Labor-H appropriation bill. Today there are over 1,200. And 3 years ago the Labor-H Subcommittee used the earmarks as blackmail by threatening to cut off earmarks for any Member who refused to vote for an inadequate bill. I did not especially like that and I made that quite clear. But the point is that the problem is not earmarks. It is the abuse of the earmark process.

This proposal does nothing to ensure institutional integrity. It is consumer fraud masquerading as earmark reform. Look at what it does not cover:

It applies only to committee reported bills. It exempts managers' amendments. That means the famous "Bridge to Nowhere" would be exempted from this bill. On tax earmarks this bill actually makes the existing law worse. Right now a tax earmark is defined as a special treatment for 100 or fewer persons. This bill says the only time that it is going to be counted as a tax earmark is if it affects one entity. That means you can have a huge tax break for two multinational oil companies and it isn't even covered in this package.

In the 1986 tax bill, there were 340 separate transition rules costing over $10 billion. There were special tax breaks for two Chrysler plants. This bill wouldn't cover it. The only way that that would be exposed under this bill is if there had only been one tax break for one of those Chrysler plants.

The tax bill that passed last year that provided special treatment for ceiling fan imports or for U.S. horse and dog racing or Hollywood studios that produce the movies in the Gulf, all exempt under this bill.

There were 190 special provisions in the Pension Protection Act of 2000, costing $180 million in taxpayers' money—virtually all of them would be exempt under this proposition.

If you want to save taxpayers' dollars, rather than continuing this silly game of Trivial Pursuit, what you would do is to require that reconciliation bills can be used only to reduce the deficit rather than increase it as the majority party has cynically used the reconciliation process the last 4 years. This bill, indeed, is Trivial Pursuit.

I don't care if you list the Members who sponsor earmarks. I put out press releases on every one of them. I attended a ceremony last week where we had a groundbreaking for an expansion of the Mel Laird Medical Center in my district. I got that earmark. I am proud of it, and I am proud to stand for it. The problem is what this package doesn't contain.

This is a joke. It is a fraud. It plays Trivial Pursuit. It focuses on the minutiae instead of the big problems. That should not be surprising given the track record of the majority party in this House. But this House ought to be able to do better.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the majority leader, and I, in my role as chairman of the Committee on Rules, have made a commitment not only to the appropriators but to all Members of this body that we will enforce this rule with respect to unreported measures and amendments, including managers' amendments, submitted to the Rules Committee. If the House considers a bill that has not been reported by a committee, the committee of jurisdiction must comply with the earmark rule and provide a list of earmarks along with the name of the Member who requested the earmark. If the House considers a manager's amendment on a bill, the committee must comply with the earmark rule and provide a list of earmarks along with the name of the Member who requested the earmark. By adopting this new rule, we as a body are not only making the commitment to live under its provisions, but every Member must make a commitment to adhere to the spirit of this new rule. This is more than just adding a new rule. It is making a commitment to change the culture of this institution.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. DREIER. I am happy to yield to my friend from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. I thank you. Will you tell me how this is going to apply to the defense appropriations bill that will be coming back to us this year from conference?

Mr. DREIER. Yes. If I could reclaim my time, the agreement that we have for implementation of this rule means that if there is anything that has a so-called airdrop provision in it, this rule will apply to—

Mr. OBEY. So none of the earmarks presently in the bill will be required?

Mr. DREIER. So this rule will be implemented immediately.

Mr. OBEY. So none of the Senate earmarks will be included; the Senate will continue to be anonymous?

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, if I could reclaim my time, I will tell you this. I know full well that the United States Senate is watching this debate very, very closely and they very much are interested in seeing us comply with this.

Mr. Speaker, at this point I would be happy to yield 2 minutes to my very good friend from Columbus, Indiana, the chairman of the Republican Study Committee, Mr. PENCE.

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding, and I thank him for his leadership on House Resolution 1000, providing for earmarking reform in the House of Representatives. I also feel moved to thank particularly the House majority leader, JOHN BOEHNER, for his yeoman's leadership and keeping his word on this issue with Members in our effort to bring this modest but meaningful reform to the floor of the Congress.

Under Article I of the Constitution of the United States, the power of the purse is the power of the House of Representatives. And today we will not yield that power in any way. The Constitution gives this body the ability to spend the money of the American people in ways large and small. House Resolution 1000 simply requires that we earmark the earmarks.

Mr. Speaker, we actually had a cow farm when I was growing up, and I know what an earmark is. It is a tag in the ear of a cow that will tell you whose cow it is. Well, the reality is under the rules that have developed over generations here in the House, we can add provisions to legislation, authorizing bills and appropriation bills, without adding names. Today by H. Res. 1000 we will simply require that we earmark the earmarks.

Transparency promotes accountability, and this institution would do well to embrace this modest but meaningful step toward greater transparency.

As JEFF FLAKE, a great leader on this issue, said earlier, it saddens me to see evidence of the low regard that millions of Americans hold the institution of the Congress. It is an historic institution filled with men and women of both parties of goodwill and integrity. By adopting this modest but meaningful earmarking reform today, we will take an important step toward restoring public confidence in the fundamental integrity of our legislative process at the national level.

I urge my colleagues in both parties to say "yes" to transparency and greater accountability, say "yes" to earmarking reform.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of giving a response, I would like to yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY).

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time.

I would simply point out under this provision, when the defense appropriations bill comes back from the Senate, not a single Senate earmark will be listed, and in the future only House earmarks will be listed. The Senate earmarks will not be listed.

I would also point out that if you read the language of this resolution, it makes quite clear that the tax provisions covered by this bill are, in fact, fewer than under existing law and also that same fact applies to trade preferences.

Trade bills are hard enough to pass now. So what happens is they slip in all kinds of special deals for special commodities in order to get 218 votes.

This bill will not lay a glove on them, and for that matter, it will not lay a glove on a single appropriations earmark. It doesn't do anything to any earmark in the House or the Senate. This bill is a fraud.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EMANUEL).

Mr. EMANUEL. Mr. Speaker, 9 months ago the Speaker said, "Now is the time for action" on real lobbying and ethics reform. At the same time, the current majority leader said we must act "because of a growing perception that the United States Congress is for sale."

And yet here we are today discussing legislation that will do nothing to prevent the abuses that have occurred on the Republican Congress' watch by both parties and both parties' Members. In short, business as usual continues here in the people's House.

When Members of Congress make millions from land deals tied to earmarks, you know something is wrong in the people's House. When Members' spouses are paid six-figure salaries for

"no-show" lobbying jobs, you know something is wrong in the people's House. When a mid-level staffer gets a $2 million buyout from a lobbying firm only to have the revolving door return him to his old job on the committee, you know something is wrong in the people's House. And this bill simply tells all the current players that the House remains open for business. Business as usual continues.

When the Speaker's gavel comes down, it is intended to open the people's House, not the auction house. The fact is we have an institutional problem requiring an institutional solution.

To that end Representatives VAN HOLLEN, DOGGETT, DELAHUNT, BEAN, BARROW, and I introduced real earmark reform legislation yesterday to eliminate the abuses. Our bill prohibits earmarks that personally benefit Members, their spouses, and immediate family members. It bans earmarks that benefit lobbyists who chair a Member's leadership PAC. It prohibits earmarks to any entity or lobbying firm employing the spouse, family member, or former staffer of the earmark sponsor. Finally, it eliminates the "sweetheart" tax provisions for a single individual or corporation, and it ends the practice of adding new earmarks into conference reports in the dead of night.

This is real reform the American people are demanding, and I challenge my colleagues to let us have a vote on it. But I know they won't because 12 years ago the Republicans came to Congress to change Washington and in those 12 years Washington changed them.

It is time for a new direction. It is time for a change. The "for sale" sign still exists on the West Lawn of the people's House.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Well, Mr. Speaker, I guess it is pretty obvious that we are 54 days away from an election. I listened to that speech, and the only thing that I can say is that we have seen a challenge here, both political parties in this institution, and we have stepped up to the plate, and we believe that accountability, transparency, and disclosure will provide an opportunity to address the understandable concerns that have existed, and I believe that we have a great opportunity with this legislation to bring about that change.

Let me just respond to Mr. OBEY's concern briefly, before I yield to my colleague, on the issue of bringing back the defense conference report. When we implement this rule, we will clearly be placing onto the shoulders of whoever is chairing that conference from the House side the responsibility of bringing back a conference report that includes a full listing, full transparency and full disclosure of all earmarks that were not in that measure when it was passed through either the House or the Senate. So for that reason we in the House would not be able to bring up and pass a report that did not have that full list that we are looking for.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Dallas, our good friend who has worked very hard on this issue, Mr. HENSARLING.

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding, and I certainly thank him for his leadership in helping bring this rule.

Two hundred and seventy-three thousand dollars to implement "garden mosaics" at a local university, $179,000 to produce hydroponic tomatoes, $550,000 for a Museum of Glass, $400,000 for an Italian market in the Bronx, $500,000 for buses at Disneyland.

Mr. Speaker, there are many worthy earmarks, worthy of this institution, but today there are still too many that do not pass the smell test, that do not pass the laugh test, and certainly do not pass the fiscal responsibility test.

Ultimately, Mr. Speaker, we have to decide do we wish to be judged by the principles on which we stand or the pork that we are able to carry? For the integrity of our institution and the fiscal future of our republic, I certainly hope it is the former.

The simple but profound rule that we are debating today will empower Members to engage in a proper debate as to whether an earmark is truly worthwhile and the opportunity to challenge its merits if it is not.

This is truly a defining moment for those who claim fealty to fiscal responsibility. The question, Mr. Speaker, now is will Democrats put their votes where their mouths are and support this rule? If they do not, they will once again be exposed for the reckless and wasteful spenders that they are.

I want to thank the Republican leadership for bringing this rule to the floor. I want to thank Chairman LEWIS for the great progress that has been made in dealing with earmarks under his watch. And I personally want to thank the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE) for his courage and relentless commitment to fight irresponsible Federal spending in the area of earmarks, and I urge the adoption of this rule.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. The world knows who is doing the big spending. We have the worst deficit we have ever seen. And as far as stepping up to the plate, the Democrats never get a chance at bat. We have absolutely nothing we can do, all we can do is vote up or down. We don't know when the bills were written, we have no impact on them at all. As far as the deliberative body, it is all on your side. So I urge all of my colleagues to vote "no" on this today.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. VAN HOLLEN).

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. Speaker, despite the huge scandals that have worked this town, this Congress has failed to pass a lobbying reform bill, we failed to pass an ethics reform bill, we failed to deal with the gift ban, we failed to stop the flying on the corporate jets, we failed to shut the resolving door. There has been a shameful lack of accountability.

Now, I support greater transparency in the earmark process, I support greater sunshine. But we should get right at the root of the problem and eliminate the worst abuses outright. Now, Mr. EMANUEL and I and others offered an amendment the other day in the Rules Committee to stop the inside dealing and to stop the sweetheart deals, and the Republican leadership said no.

What did that amendment do? It was pretty simple. It said a Member of Congress can't take Federal taxpayers' dollars and earmark them for an organization that employs their spouse or their family members. They said no to that. It says let's not take Federal taxpayer dollars and steer them to an organization that just employed one of their former staffers. They said no to that.

Mr. DREIER. Would the gentleman yield?

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Not out of my time, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. DREIER. If I could yield myself 10 seconds out of my time.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. I would be happy to.

Mr. DREIER. I was just going to say that there was no amendment offered in the Rules Committee whatsoever, so nothing was rejected.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. There was an amendment.

Mr. DREIER. No, there wasn't. I chair the committee, and I will tell you that there was not an amendment that was offered in the Rules Committee.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. There was a proposal.

We made some proposals to address that issue.

Mr. DREIER. It wasn't offered in the Rules Committee.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Thank you.

There is a proposal also out there that we have sponsored that I hope you will address and make in order to this particular piece of legislation with respect to prohibiting funds from going to somebody who has an organization, if that person is also the head of a political action committee of a leadership PAC, some simple rules of the game that we should all therefore be able to agree to, I hope. If you didn't take it up in the Rules Committee, maybe we can take it up now today if we all agree that those are abuses that we should end.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. If the gentleman will yield, and I will give him the extra time, but let me make clear that this amendment was submitted to the Rules Committee for consideration. The fact that you would not take it up is not the fault of Mr. VAN HOLLEN.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. Speaker, we submitted an amendment to the Rules Committee for its consideration. I am sorry that the chairman decided not to take up the amendment, but what the amendment did was outline the very simple prohibitions that we talked about, to prohibit us from steering Federal taxpayers' dollars to organizations that employed family members, that employed former staff members, or where monies were steered through lobbyists and lobbyist organizations that employed spouses or family members or former staff members.

The key issue here is trying to end the sort of inside dealing and sweetheart deals that have rocked this town. We have not done that. What worries me about this piece of legislation is that people are going to pass it and they are going to go home to their congressional districts and they are going to tell people: We have cleaned up Washington; that we have stopped the abuses, that we have done something about the nexus between lobbying problems and the earmark process, when in fact we haven't done it.

The earmarks have skyrocketed since the Republicans took control of Congress, and yet they have also refused to adopt a rule that we proposed for a pay-as-you-go budget. The President and others complain about earmarks, but he hasn't vetoed a single bill except the stem cell bill. We keep hearing about the problems on the spending side, and yet every one of the bills that has gone through this Congress has been signed by the President. Again, the only bill he has vetoed is the bill dealing with stem cell research.

So if we are serious about fiscal accountability, let's adopt the pay-as-you-go rule that has been proposed by the Democrats, and let's adopt the measures that I talked about that we submitted to the Rules Committee that would end the worst abuses. And I still don't understand why the Rules Committee failed to take up and consider those proposals.

I thank my colleague from New York for the time. Let's send a signal to the people around this country that we recognize the abuses that have taken place, that we are going to do something real, let's not just pretend we are doing something. There is some momentum to do things here. We are not taking advantage of it. Let's do that.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 45 seconds to say to my friend that to call increasing transparency, accountability, and disclosure as pretend is absolutely outrageous.

There is bipartisan concern about this problem, as stated from my friend from Wisconsin and from other Members on both sides of the aisle, and I believe that this measure will allow us to do that.

The proposal that the gentleman is talking about may have been listed upstairs, but it wasn't offered on the Committee on Rules for us to consider. And in looking at it, Mr. Speaker, I have got to tell you that we found that it was the most impractical thing imaginable.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to my very good friend from Newport Beach, Mr. CAMPBELL.

Mr. CAMPBELL of California. Mr. Speaker, I have been in this House for less than a year, not a very long time, but it is long enough to know that this is real reform.

In the first 90 days after I was elected to this House, I received 70, that is 7-0, requests for various earmarks. A whole lot of those, frankly, were not appropriate; whether there wasn't a Federal nexus, whether there wasn't a public benefit, for whatever reason, they weren't appropriate. Now, I submitted seven of those 70 for consideration by the Appropriations Committee, and I have made very public what those seven were. Because if we are going to spend taxpayer money, we ought to be able to justify it and to stand behind what we are doing, why we are doing it, and who is doing it. And that is what this does. It simply says if we are going to spend the taxpayers' money in this way, and there is nothing inappropriate if there is a Federal nexus, et cetera, about Members spending money on things that have a Federal nexus and are appropriate and have a public good in their district. There is nothing wrong with that process. But you should be able to shine the light of day on it, to stand behind it, to say this is what I am doing and this is why I am doing it and this is who is doing it. And that is what this does.

Now, you could sit there as some of our friends on the other side of the aisle want to do and try to indicate everything that is inappropriate. But isn't it better if we just simply say, here it is and here is the name, so that the person doing it, if they know that there is anything there, then they won't come forward with it.

Now, I have to tell you this is unlikely to save any money, unlikely to reduce spending, but what it will do is I think it will add greatly to what we do spend being spent better.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Austin, Texas (Mr. MCCAUL).

Mr. MCCAUL of Texas. I thank the chairman for his leadership on this important resolution.

Mr. Speaker, in the past we have seen abusive earmarks in appropriation bills while the Members responsible hide from the scrutiny of the American taxpayer. We have also seen earmarks included in the conference process in the darkness of night. Well, this bill changes all that. As a former Federal prosecutor in the Public Integrity Section, I have always said that sunlight is the best disinfectant.

From now on, our appropriations tax and authorizing earmarks will have a bright light shined upon them. From now on, all reported bills and conference reports will include a list of earmarks and the name of the Member requesting them. Members will also be able to challenge any "air-dropped earmark."

This is exactly the transparency and accountability that the House needs, and it is something that the American people have come to expect and deserve. I urge my colleagues to vote for this important step to restoring integrity to the process.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, at this time I am happy to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Wantage, New Jersey (Mr. GARRETT).

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, it is time for us to open up our books to the American people so that everyone in the public can be fully apprised as to how their hard-earned dollars are spent by the Federal Government. I rise in support of this bill for reform.

Accountability is not something that should be or could be postponed. It should be instinctive in all of our work as stewards of the American taxpayer. It should be reflective, but sadly it is not.

I am encouraged that we are taking up this bill. I believe it is an important first step forward in accountability. The reforms we consider today in essence broaden the efforts of our earlier reforms and lobbying reform package of legislation that we passed earlier. It goes now to appropriations, authorization, and tax bills.

We must stop the process of loading up authorization bills with pork the way we loaded up appropriations bills. That infamous Bridge to Nowhere, that was an appropriations bill. It was an earmark in a bill authorizing Federal spending giving the congressional imprimatur to the project.

We must police Federal tax laws better as well. We load up our tax bills with special tax breaks, making the IRS Code totally incomprehensible even to the most skilled and practiced CPA. We cannot begin the process of simplifying the Tax Code until we end the practice of random tax cut earmarks.

For too long these earmarks have lived a really quiet existence in the back room, in the dead of night; they slip into language without even the public's awareness to it. But let me just make this other point: Not all earmarks are bad. There are local projects that are worthy of Federal assistance. But worthy projects will be those that stand up to the light of day in public scrutiny and floor debate. And as we work to curb spending and government waste, such accountability is crucial.

So as one of my fellow Members likes to say, and I often quote him, we must put the focus back on the family budget and not on the Federal budget. In fact, until we get a handle on all earmarks, all our other efforts to rein in spending, to reduce the deficit, and to fund true national priorities like protecting our Nation from terrorism will be useless.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I will be asking for a "no" vote on the previous question so I can amend the rule to give the House an opportunity to vote today up or down on a comprehensive reform package.

I ask unanimous consent to insert the text of the amendment and extraneous materials immediately prior to the vote on the previous question. That will include the listing of the amendments at the Rules Committee.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. THORNBERRY). Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from New York?

There was no objection.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, the Republican leadership in this House has promised for months it would enact comprehensive ethics and lobbying reform legislation in this Congress. We all know that it has not and most likely will not happen before the House adjourns for the mid-term elections in just 2 weeks. But we still have time and opportunity to do something today if we will defeat the previous question.

The amendment provides that, immediately after the House adopts this rule, it will bring up ethics and lobbying reform legislation that is identical to the motion to recommit that I offered this past May. That motion to recommit, which had bipartisan support, came within three votes of passing.

This legislation, called the Honest Leadership and Open Government Act, is a truly comprehensive ethics and lobbying reform initiative. It takes a tough stand on a number of the problems that have led to the culture of corruption that has evolved in the 109th Congress.

I urge all Members to vote "no" on the previous question so we can bring up legislation and give Members of this House the right to cast a vote for cleaning up the ethics problems that have plagued this institution for too long. Time is running out for the 109th Congress. If we do not act now, there will be no opportunity to show the American people that we are serious about reform.

Vote "no" on the previous question and vote "no" on the rule for this piece of legislation that will only live for two more weeks.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of the time.

Mr. Speaker, under the very able leadership of my California colleague JERRY LEWIS we have seen a 37 percent reduction in the number of earmarks. We have seen either a flat line or real cuts in the appropriations bills with the exception of our priorities of national defense and homeland security, and we have seen a very strong commitment to institutional reform. I take my hat off to JERRY LEWIS for the fine work that he has done.

Mr. Speaker, we are constantly looking at more reform. The Speaker of the House, the majority leader, I believe that Members on both sides of the aisle believe that we should pursue greater transparency, greater disclosure and greater accountability. I have heard Democrats and Republicans alike say that over the past hour. We have an opportunity to do just that right now.

We, I am very happy to say, have put into place bold economic policies that have led to a $58 billion reduction in the deficit over last year's number.

We today have the lowest unemployment rate on the face of the earth. There is no other country in the world with an unemployment rate as low as our unemployment rate, and yet we need to continue to do everything that we can to try and rein in Federal spending.

I, as a Republican, believe that the reach of government not only costs money, but it impinges on individual initiative and opportunity. I believe that as we focus on this kind of reform we will be in a position where we will be able to improve the quality of life and the standard of living for our constituents.

Mr. Speaker, vote "yes" on the previous question and "yes" on this rule.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to the legislation before us today. This legislation is not real reform; it is merely an empty shell riddled with loopholes that will allow the culture of corruption that has infected this House to continue virtually unchecked.

This bill—for which the text has only been available for less than 12 hours—is simply a poorly masked effort by Republicans to distract voters from the fact that they have failed to live up to their promises to pass real ethics and lobbying reform. The only reform they can claim victory for is banning former Members who are now lobbyists from the Members' gym. While this is of course an admirable step, it is a baby step at most.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that sunshine is the best disinfectant—and I can truly say that this House has never been more in need of a good dose of sunshine. Over the past few years, we have seen some truly appalling abuses of power. Legislation has been passed without Members even knowing what they are voting for; votes have been held open for record amounts of time; and lobbyists have had more access to conference negotiations than Members of the conference. This shameful behavior should not be acceptable to Members of either party, and this bill is just another example of how Congress has done nothing to stop it.

I urge my colleagues to reject this bill and to make valid, meaningful reform a genuine priority for the 109th Congress.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Speaker, I urge support of H. Res. 1000, which will require disclosure of earmark sponsors in the text of any legislation considered in the House. This is a commonsense change that should improve the transparency of the earmarking process and eliminate questions about who is really behind the funding of thousands of projects.

I believe securing federal funding for local projects can be an important role for a member of Congress, so long as the project meets basic requirements. I use two tests to determine whether to seek funding. First, I ensure that transportation projects have the support of the local chief executive, regional planning agency and the Connecticut Department of Transportation.

Secondly, I apply my "community meeting" test. If I can't justify the funding to constituents, I know it's not a project I should support.

Earmarks have funded a broad array of transportation projects in the Fourth Congressional District, including the Bridgeport Intermodal Center, the Norwalk Pulse Point Improvement project, and the Stamford Urban Transitway, and projects promoting urban development in our urban areas and education. Unfortunately, projects like Alaska's "Bridge to Nowhere," taint views of all congressionally-directed funding.

I do not believe adoption of this resolution today lessens the need for comprehensive lobbying and ethics reform, because today's action still does not prevent the type of behavior we have witnessed in recent months. The resolution does provide additional sunlight on the process, however, which I think we can all agree is a good thing.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I strongly support this resolution to reform the earmark process in Congress.

Not all spending requests are bad. Many of them fund legitimate public projects.

The Constitution gives Congress the power of the purse, and Members of Congress are often in a better position to determine the priorities of their districts than government employees in Washington.

However, the often secret process that has been used in recent years to fund earmarks has led to wasteful and unnecessary spending.

The earmark process needs more sunshine on it, and this new rule provides for that.

This bill will bring greater transparency to the legislative process, ensuring that Members of Congress are held accountable for their requests.

By requiring a list of earmarks and their sponsors to accompany every bill and conference report considered by the House we will deter wrongful behavior and give the public a better view of what their elected officials are doing in Washington.

Full disclosure will enable our constituents to decide whether spending requests are justified and whether they serve the public interest.

I have long advocated for this important reform and I am glad the House is acting on it.

Republicans in the House have a strong record of implementing ethics reform. This rule change governing earmarks represents a great improvement over the current system and is another example of our party's leadership on ethics reform.

At this time, I request unanimous consent to place in the RECORD an op-ed I wrote on the subject.

I am hopeful that we will continue to implement additional reforms, including greater public disclosure of lobbying activities, and continue to uphold the integrity of the House.

Mr. Speaker, I am glad this resolution has been brought to the floor and urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I am inserting in the RECORD a list of additional Members who would like to be considered as cosponsors of H. Res. 1000.

Additional Members include: MARK GREEN, JOHN LINDER, and CHARLES BASS.

(b)(1) For the purpose of this resolution, the term "tax earmark" means any revenue-losing provision that provides a Federal tax deduction, credit, exclusion, or preference to only one beneficiary (determined with respect to either present law or any provision of which the provision is a part) under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 in any year for which the provision is in effect;

(2) for purposes of paragraph (1)—

(A) all businesses and associations that are members of the same controlled group of corporations (as defined in section 1563(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) shall be treated as a single beneficiary;

(B) all shareholders, partners, members, or beneficiaries of a corporation, partnership, association, or trust or estate, respectively, shall be treated as a single beneficiary;

(C) all employees of an employer shall be treated as a single beneficiary;

(D) all qualified plans of an employer shall be treated as a single beneficiary;

(E) all beneficiaries of a qualified plan shall be treated as a single beneficiary;

(F) all contributors to a charitable organization shall be treated as a single beneficiary;

(G) all holders of the same bond issue shall be treated as a single beneficiary; and

(H) if a corporation, partnership, association, trust or estate is the beneficiary of a provision, the shareholders of the corporation, the partners of the partnership, the members of the association, or the beneficiaries of the trust or estate shall not also be treated as beneficiaries of such provision;

(3) for the purpose of this subsection, the term "revenue-losing provision" means any provision that is estimated to result in a reduction in Federal tax revenues (determined with respect to either present law or any provision of which the provision is a part) for any one of the two following periods—

(A) the first fiscal year for which the provision is effective; or

(B) the period of the 5 fiscal years beginning with the first fiscal year for which the provision is effective; and

(4) the terms used in this subsection shall have the same meaning as those terms have generally in the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, unless otherwise expressly provided.

(c) For the purpose of this resolution—

(1) government-sponsored enterprises, Federal facilities, and Federal lands shall be considered Federal entities;

(2) to the extent that the non-Federal entity is a State, unit of local government, territory, an Indian tribe, a foreign government or an intergovernmental international organization, the provision or language shall not be considered an earmark unless the provision or language also specifies the specific purpose for which the designated budget authority is to be expended;

(3) the term "budget authority" shall have the same meaning as such term is defined in section 3 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (2 U.S.C. 622); and

(4) an obligation limitation shall be treated as though it is budget authority.
